Why a Recovery High School?

When students with substance use issues complete inpatient treatment, or enter recovery through community-based or outpatient supports, returning to their home school can be challenging.

For teens, school can present more triggers for a recurrence of use than any other environment. Recovery high schools are designed to provide a safe, supportive environment for teens in recovery where they can pursue their high school diploma and their recovery at the same time.

Low student to staff ratio, on-site recovery support services, and our emphasis on positive peer connections enable our students to remain clean and sober and to graduate from high school. In a normal school environment, the odds are against their success. Recovery High Schools are designed to help these students thrive.

About Us

The birth of the Raymond J. Lesniak Experience, Strength & Hope Recovery High School came about through a unique public/private partnership between one of the state's leading non-profits focused on addiction prevention, Prevention Links, the award winning Union County Vocational Technical Schools (UCVTS) and Simon Youth Academy.

We opened our doors in the fall of 2014 and have been serving NJ youth in need of recovery every since.

Following the framework established by the Association of Recovery Schools...

Our purpose, as defined by ARS is to, "educate students in recovery from substance use; meet state standards for awarding a secondary school diploma; intend that all students enrolled be in recovery and working a program of recovery for substance use disorders..."
